

CPH EXPLORES ENHANCED ENGAGEMENT WITH ITS STAKEHOLDER, QU HEALTH CENTER

Qatar University (QU) College of Pharmacy recently convened productive meetings with key stakeholders from QU Healthcare Center to discuss potential avenues for enhanced student engagement, training opportunities, and collaborative research initiatives. Potential activities explored included:

- Increased Student Involvement in Primary Healthcare Settings:

Opportunities for students to gain practical experience through pharmacy public health programs and volunteer activities within QU Healthcare Center facilities.

- Tailored Training Programs: Development of specialized training modules and workshops designed to equip healthcare practitioners skills and knowledge relevant to the healthcare landscape in Qatar e.g. conducting quality research, data analysis, and precision medicine.

- Joint Research Projects: Exploration of collaborative research endeavors between CPH faculty, healthcare practitioners at QU Healthcare Center, and students, focusing on addressing pertinent healthcare challenges and advancing pharmacy knowledge.

The meetings underscored a shared commitment to providing QU students with valuable experiential learning opportunities and fostering a strong pipeline of future healthcare professionals for Qatar. Further discussions and planning are underway to formalize specific initiatives and timelines for implementation. This collaborative effort aims to enrich the academic journey of CPH students and contribute to the advancement of healthcare within the community.
